FIFTY YEARS AGO.

RUNAWAY.

A horse belonging to Wheeler Beers, Esq., while standing before a carriage just in front of his residence, at the corner of Cedar and Main streets, became alarmed at a passing wheelbarrow, about 6:30 p. m., yesterday and ran rapidly down Main street to Beaver, through Beaver to Middle, up Wall, finally bringing up at Aldrich's stables. The horse fell several times, taking the skin of his legs, and breaking the shafts of the carriage. He might have been stopped at two or three points if there had not been frightened him still further by waving their caps and shouting--the usual course adopted to stop runaway horses.

GOOD COOL LAGER.

William Wagner, the "old stager" in the lager business, well and popularly known to all consumers of that beverage, has recently fitted up a fine saloon, under the Farmer office, complete in all its appointments, suitably arranged, and just the spot to drop in with a friend and test your united capacity for lager. His lager pump is an institution, and works to a charm. Call and see him; when you are tired of lager, "punch" a few billiards, or do a little air-gun shooting.

GOING INTO CAMP.

We learn that the Cadets of Mr. Brown's school will go into their annual encampment next week. The camp ground is a beautiful location in the vicinity of Holland Heights. The recreation which this encampment will afford is just what the boys need at this season of the year.

TWENTY YEARS AGO.

ST. PATRICK'S OUTING.

The first anniversary of the St. Patrick's Young Men's society was celebrated Saturday (July 3, 1895), by an outing at Camp Montez Rock. O'Neill's Colts played ball against Keyes' bury giants and defeated them 9 to 0. Jack Kelly won the 100 yard dash, and Walter Gall the high jump. Thomas Myrner and John Burke had a drawn race on bicycles and will try it over at some later date. The Donnelly Kickers defeated the St. Patrick Jr.'s at baseball, 7 to 5. Robert Keane defeated George Murphy in a swimming contest. After dinner speeches were made by President Michael Keyes, John M. Donnelly and ex-President Thomas E. Donnelly.

LORD NORBURY IN OVERALLS POPULAR AMONG WORKMEN

Says Manual Labor Is Coming Out "Top Hole"--Expects To Save Money.

London, July 9.--One of the latest and most popular recruits in the ranks of those who are "doing something for their country" during the war, has appeared in the person of Lord Norbury, now turned the 50 years of age mark. He commenced his self-imposed task recently in the fitting shop of an aeroplane works attired in a coarse blue calico smock and cloth cap. Nearby the works in a small lodge occupied by a butler, Lord Norbury has engaged a little simple-furnished bedroom and is doing his own valeting. The butler says His Lordship is paying workman's rent, and is taking his meals with the other workmen in the general canteen. His Lordship had put in a few hours' work and was sitting with the after-breakfast crowd in the canteen before being recognized by a blue-suited laborer who then came over and spoke to him. "How do you do, old chap, glad to meet you," said the workman, putting out his hand which the peer cordially shook. Another workman was heard to remark, "I guess he's good enough and we will put him flying to a thing or two if he only shows half an eye!"

At the close of his day's work--4 a. m. to 5 p. m.--Lord Norbury seemed well content with his first efforts as a laborer. "Things are turned out 'top hole,'" he said. "It is really very enjoyable and there is something noble in all manual work. No leisure time, no fatigue, I am used to hard work and do not feel a bit tired. The other fellows are quite 'pally' and ready to do a good turn any moment." Lord Norbury's work was well approved by the old hands at the works. "He is pretty handy," they said. "He will be all right before long; you don't want to tell him a thing twice, and he is quite a sport, too." "Nobby" is the nickname for His Lordship amongst his fellow workmen.

Lord Norbury says he is to be just an ordinary workman, expecting and receiving no preferential treatment. Asked if he would be able to live on his wages, he replied: "Rather! I hope to save. Why, I shall be a rich man shortly--with 54 hours a week, the subject's duty is the nation's, and let us have universal service; let us have something quickly, at once, something chosen advisedly and not haphazardly--something, in fine, for all."

An army of large mosquitos, suspected of having been blown over from New Jersey, invaded the New York city and drove occupants to cover. They were finally repulsed with "swatters."
